THE PARTING OF SUMMER.

BY MRS. HEMANS. Thou'rt bearing hence thy roses, Glad Summer; fare the well! Thou'rt singing thy last melodies In every wood and dell.

But in the golden sunset Of the latest lingering day, Oh! tell me o'er this chequered earth How thou hast passed away?

Brightly, sweet Summer! brightly Thine hours have floated by, To the joyous birds of the woodland boughs The rangers of the sky.

And brightly in the forests, To the wild deer bounding free: And brightly midst the garden flowers, To the happy murmuring bee.

But how to human bosoms, With all their hopes and fears; And thoughts that made them eagle wings To pierce the unbern years?

Sweet summer, to the captive Thou hast flown in burning dreams Of the woods, with all their hopes and leaves, And the blue rejoicing streams;

On the bed of sickness bound, In sweet, delicious fantasies That changed with every sound; To the sailor on the billows. In longings wild and vain

To the wasted and the weary,

And the home of earth again. And unto me, glad Summer! How hast thou flown to me? My chainless footsteps nought have kept

For the gushing founts and breezy hills,

From thy haunts of song and glee. Thou hast flown in wayward visions, In memories of the dead-In shadows from a troubled heart,

O'er a sunny path way shed; -In brief and sudden strivings, To fling a weight aside; 'Midst these thy melodies have ceased,

And all thy roses died! But oh! thou gentle Summer! If I greet thy flowers once more, Bring me again thy buoyancy, Wherewith my soul should soar!

Give me to hail thy sunshine With song and spirit free; Or in a purer land than this May our next meeting be!

'Well, well,' I said, 'I want something that is holy, to see if it will not shed light on iniquity; I will bear the responsibility.

I took the candle and proceeded down the staircase, when we entered a large room, called the Hall of Judgment. In the centre of it was a large block, and a chain fastened to it. On this they had been accustomed to place the accused, chained to his seat. On one side of the room was an elevated seat, called the Throne of Judgment. This the Inquisitor General occupied, and on either side were seats less elevated, for the holy fathers when engaged in the solemn business of the Holy Inquisition. From this room we proceeded to the right, and obtained access to small cells, extending the entire length of the edifice; and here what a sight met our eyes! How has the benevolent religion of Jesus been abused and slandered by its professed friends!

These cells were places of solitary confinement, where the wretched objects of inquisitorial hate were confined year after year, till death released them from their sufferings; and there their bodies were suf-sufferings; and there their bodies were suf-brass and iron butts, socket chisels, nails, sand-pacayed, and the rooms had become fit for per, tacks, patent sash line, sash tools, hook pots, fered to remain until they were entirely deothers to occupy. To prevent this practice in part consisting of paint, white-wash, scrub, &c. being offensive to those who occupied the inquisition, there were flues or tubes extending to the open air, sufficiently capacious to Crates of nappies, mugs, bowles, blue and green printed soup and dinner plates, blue and green dinof them had been dead apparently but a short time, while of others nothing remained but their bones, still chained to the floor of from the young man and maiden to those of 2nd.
